THE RACE OF LIFE.

[WRITTEN FOR THE NEWS.]

Who thinks to run the race of life, In his own strength and power, He runs but to an open grave, In an unlooked for hour.

And he who trusts his own wisdom To plan life's future ways, Is doomed to meet naught but defeat; Sorrow must end his days.

Trust thou to God to give thee help, According to thy day. Ask thou for wisdom from on high, To guide thee on thy way.

MILES SAUNDERS.

Children Married.

Myrtle Miller, fourteen years of age, and Jonas Robbins, seventeen years old, were married last week at the residence of John Allen, the bride's uncle, at Lee City. Rev. Charles Robbins, the father of the groom, performed the ceremony.

Lively Fight at Lee City.

Hendricks Elam and two of the Jacobs boys became involved in a difficulty over a trade at Lee City. Elam was armed with a revolver and the Jacobs with knives. Elam opened fire and wounded one of the Jacobs in the left side, the other one took shelter in a nearby store. Elam was placed under arrest.

Boy Accidentally Killed.

An accident occurred near Stanton last week resulting in the death of Russell Welch, a ten-year-old boy. He and his brother were out hunting and were climbing a hill. Russell was in front and his brother, Hal, was behind, carrying a gun. Hal slipped and fell and in some way the gun was discharged. The contents entered Russell's left leg and he fell, bleeding to death before medical aid could be reached.

The Wedding Anniversary.

The celebration of wedding anniversaries before the fifth is rare, although the first and second are respectively cotton and paper. The list follows:

- Fifth year—Wooden.
Tenth year—Tin.
Fifteenth year—Crystal.
Twentieth year—China.
Twenty-fifth year—Silver.
Thirtieth year—Pearl.
Fortieth year—Ruby.
Fiftieth year—Gold.
Sixtieth year—Diamond.

Still Raided in Powell County.

Last Friday night Deputy Collector Insko, of Carlisle, and a posse made a raid on a moonshine still on Cano creek, Powell county, and captured William Dunn while at work in the still. They then destroyed a sixty-gallon copper, 145 gallons of singlings and 450 gallons of beer, and burned the still house. At daylight they arrested Clay Chambers at his home. He escaped and ran a mile and was overtaken. Both men were taken to Mt. Sterling and placed in jail.

Don't Snub Shabby Clothes.

Don't snub a boy because he wears shabby clothes. Edison, the inventor of the telephone, wore a pair of linen breeches when he first entered Boston, in the dead of winter. Don't snub a boy because his home is plain and unpretending. Abraham Lincoln's early home was in a log cabin. Don't snub a boy because of the ignorance of his parents. Shakespeare, the world's greatest poet, was the son of a man who was not able to write his own name. Don't snub a boy because he chooses a humble trade. The author of "Pilgrim's Progress" was a tinker. Don't snub anybody. Not only because some day he may outstrip you in the race of life, but because it is neither kind, nor right, nor christianlike.

Pleasant and Harmless.

Don't drug the stomach to cure a cough. One Minute Cough Cure cures the cough, draws the inflammation out of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, heals, soothes and cures. A quick cure for Croup and Whooping Cough. One Minute Cough Cure relieves a cough in one minute because it acts first on the mucous membrane right where the cough troubles—in the throat or deep-seated on the lungs. Sold by M. S. Crain.

Wolfe County Man Missing.

MacK Whisman, a prominent farmer living on Devil's Creek, in Wolfe county, left his home some days ago, telling his family that he was going to Campton to buy some clothing and that he never expected to see them again. He was in Campton and that was the last seen or heard of him by his family, who say that he had been sick for some time and that they fear that his mind has become unbalanced. He had considerable money with him when he left home.

And the Fire Was Out.

A preacher in Indiana is responsible for this: "I had occasion at one time to hold a meeting near Zionsville. The choir was composed of two old maids of a Jolly Thirty Club, and two old bachelors. When the chorists to the official hymn: 'Unto us a child was born,' and the old bachelors followed up with 'W-o-o-n-d-e-r-f-u-l.' Then some wag near the door had to snicker. The choir quit abruptly and the service came to an end."

Trees and Youth.

Trees grow very much as boys and girls grow, from something small and helpless into something large and strong—from small seeds or stones into great towers of wide-spreading green branches. Just as boys and girls need plenty of good, pure blood in order to grow big and strong, so the trees need it, too, only their blood is called sap. Trees take a long nap in winter, but in February they show signs of waking up. The sap starts, and then something begins to grow. If you watch the tree carefully all through the year you will find what a beautiful barometer it is; how it will tell you, in tree language, that spring is coming. The dead-looking trees of winter suddenly change color, little hard buds appear, and with every rain and sunbeam these buds swell and swell until finally with the blossoms spring begins.

Powers' Trial.

The Court of Appeals last Saturday overruled the Commonwealth's petition for a rehearing in the Cable Powers case which was filed by the Commonwealth. This means that the fourth trial of Powers can take place at the May term of the Scott Circuit Court if both sides are ready. The Court of Appeals several months ago, it will be recalled, reversed a judgment of the Scott Circuit Court sentencing Powers to be hanged, and ordered a new trial. Judge Barker delivered the opinion. After the opening of the January term, when Judge Burnam retired and Judge Cantrell took his place, a petition for rehearing was filed by Attorney General Hays representing the Commonwealth. This petition has been pending since early in January last. Powers' case is expected to be called at the May term of the Scott Circuit Court.

Are You Engaged?

Engaged people should remember that, after marriage many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their directions in good condition with electricity. S. A. Brown, of Remington-Bitters, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." The Jackson Drug Co., sells and guarantees them, at 50c a bottle.

The Woman's Home Companion for April is the Easter number, and well tells the season. A leading article, "Most picturesque of Easter Celebrations," describes an Easter in Jerusalem. The second in the series of articles on food-adulteration comes in relating "How the Baby Pays the Tax." The fiction is unusually good—"The King of Diamonds," by Louis Frary, predicting new and fascinating complications, and in the second installment of "Martha and Her American Kitchen." Marion Harland enlivening our interest still further in the work of a newly married couple—and the short stories are capital. Fads and Frits of Fashion," tell, of course, about Easter hats and gowns. "Nature-Study," Mrs. Sangster's helpful talk, Mrs. Richardson's practical advice to "The Girl Who Earns Her Own Living," and other regular departments, are as full of interest as ever. Published by The Crowell Publishing Company, Springfield, Ohio; one dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

SPRING SPRAYING.

Do Not Let the San Jose and Other Scale Get Ahead of You. By J. J. BARTON.

If San Jose scale has not yet invaded your neighborhood, trust to a kind providence and make a move, good and hard, to keep it out. If it is already there, use the same measures, but in a more superlative degree. If such a thing there can be. The San Jose scale, or louse, for it is the latter, under the scale, that does the mischief, is a sort of little Jap in the world of insect pests. Many bigger ones there are, but few more successful.

How to Know the Scale. The scale is most easily recognized in midsummer, when it appears a sort of purplish tinge to the bark of the tree, but it is then very firmly entrenched and difficult to fight. Take a microscope to your apple, pear, peach and plum trees now, just as soon as you can, especially if they look a bit rough or scurfy or seem in any way unhealthy last season.

A tree when badly infested with the San Jose scale presents a somewhat grayish appearance, as if it were coated with ashes, but the ordinary observers would hardly notice this or realize its significance. By carefully scraping the bark with a knife blade little scales of various sizes may be found, beneath which are the soft, jellylike orange colored insects.

What Shall We Do With It? Spraying in late winter or early spring before the buds open is the accepted remedy. Various solutions are used, but the boiled lime, salt and sulphur mixture is perhaps still the cheapest and safest for the tree.

Owing to the trouble of preparing that wash, however, the University (N. Y.) station devised a self-bubbling mixture that has met with much favor. The formula is as follows: Lime, 30 pounds; sulphur, 15 pounds; caustic soda, 10 pounds; water, 50 gallons.

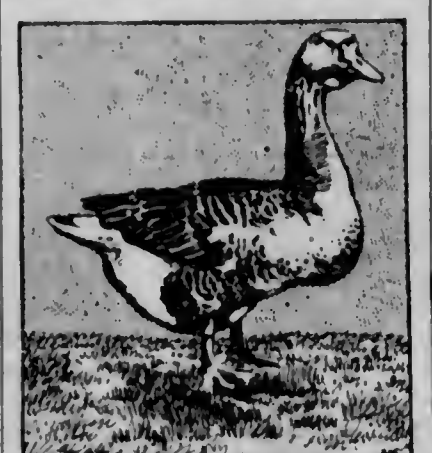

The sulphur is made into a thin paste with boiling water and poured over and well distributed through the lime. Additional water is used as needed to keep the lime-sulphur material in a rather stiff paste. As soon as the lime is slaked the full amount of caustic soda is added and stirred until boiling ceases. Enough water is then poured in to make fifty gallons of the wash.

Attacked By a Mob.

and beaten, in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor, applied Eugene's Arnica Salve, and was soon sound and well. "I use it in my family," writes (J. J. Welch, of Takonah, Mich., "and find it perfect." Simply great for cuts and burns. Only 25c. at The Jackson Drug Co.

The Toulouse Goose.

The Toulouse Goose, Wonderful Joe, reproduced from American Agriculture, was imported by W. A. Widger to 1901. It is a very massive and powerfully built bird, very long, deep, heavy

One of the Valuable Farm Products.

The manure from animals fed on cotton seed or its products is of the very highest value. Cotton seed and cottonseed meal are about the only feeds that are ever used directly as fertilizers and that are worth their market price for this purpose.

The Real Awfulness.

It is a awful fact that immigration into the United States is again running larger than ever, and the real awfulness lies in the large proportion of these immigrants who are of undesirable quality, says American Agriculture.

By the Tonic Route.

The pills that act as a tonic, and not as a drastic purge, are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. They cure headache, constipation, biliousness, etc. Early Risers are small, easy to take and easy to act—a safe pill. Mack Hamilton, hotel clerk at Valley City, N. D., says: "Two bottles cured me of chronic constipation." Sold by M. S. Crain.

For Her Majesty the Queen.

Considerable experience has taught me that all most boxes for laying or hatching purposes should be movable. When a hen becomes broody and I wish to set her I place the eggs under her and that evening move her, box and all, to the brooder house, where three sitting hens are given the use of one apartment. There are no inter-hoppers to lay by them and break the eggs. They can get off whenever they feel like it for food and drink, which are kept in all the apartments. Two cleats are nailed to the back of the box and a hole bored in each cleat, by means of which the box is hung on two stout nails driven in the side of the building. It is well to have these nails all the same distance apart, so that boxes are interchangeable and can be placed anywhere. The walls should be temporary and driven with the heads projecting one and a half inches and sloping upward, so as to hold the boxes firmly.

An Indisputable SAFE INVESTMENT

The material progress which our country is now, and has been making for the past decade of years, naturally brings to the surface numerous schemes of the "get-rich-quick" character that benefit only the promoters of such, at the expense of innocent investors.

In this age of genuine prosperity with every legitimate business booming, wages high, work in abundance, giving employment to all willing to earn, and products of the farm bringing best prices; there is little or no excuse for one not to join the army of money-makers.

The first and safest investment to make is to become a reader of the CINCINNATI ENQUIRER, the greatest and most reliable newspaper in the United States. With the facts, truth and information gleaned from its columns, one may become well qualified to reach out and secure his share of profit that always accrues from investments intelligently made.

The WEEKLY ENQUIRER costs but one dollar for one year's term. The SUNDAY ENQUIRER costs you two dollars for a year. The DAILY ENQUIRER (7 issues a week) you get for fourteen dollars a year.

Without the aid of a first-class newspaper, success in any enterprise becomes problematical. For ten cents you can secure a sample copy of each, DAILY, SUNDAY AND WEEKLY ENQUIRER. Address,
Enquirer Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

CHAPTER II.

WE heard no more of the voices. Uncle Eben had brought an armful of wood and some water in the teapot while I was sleeping. As soon as the rain had passed he stood listening awhile and shortly opened his knife and made a little clearing in the corn by cutting a few hills.

"We've got to do it," he said, "or we can't take any comfort, and the man to me I could have all the corn I wanted."

"Did you see him, Uncle Eben?" I remembered asking.

"Yes," he answered, "whittling in the dark; I saw him when I went out for the water, and it was he to me they were after us."

He took a look at the sky after awhile and, remarking that he guessed they couldn't see his smoke now, began to kindle the fire. As I turned up he stuck two crutches and hung his teapot on a stick that lay in them as it took the heat of the flame, as I had seen him do in the morning. Our groans in the corn were shortly as cheerful as any room in a palace, and our fire sent its light into the long aisles that opened opposite, and nobody could see the warm glow of it but ourselves.

"Well, he's our supper," said Uncle Eben as he opened a paper and spread out the eggs and bread and butter and crackers. "We'll just have our supper, and by the way when every one's about well make tracks in the dirt, I can tell ye."

Our supper over, Uncle Eben let me look at his tobacco box, a shiny thing of German silver that always seemed to snap out a quick farewell to me before it dived into his pocket. He was very cheerful and communicative and joked a good deal as we lay there waiting in the freight. I got some further acquaintance with the swift, learning, among other things, that it had no appetite for the pure in heart.

"Why not?" I inquired.

"Well," said Uncle Eben, "it's like this—the meaner the boy the sweeter the meal."

He sang an old song as he sat by the fire, with a whistled interlude between lines, and the swelling of it even now carries me back to that far day in the fields. I lay with my head in his lap while he was singing.

I went asleep after awhile in spite of all, right in the middle of a story. The dreamy voice of Uncle Eben and the feel of his hand upon my forehead called me back, blinking, once or twice, but not for long. The fire was gone down to a few embers when Uncle Eben woke me and the grog was lit only by a sprinkle of moonlight from above.

"Mos' 12 o'clock," he whispered. "Better be off."

The basket was on his back, and he was all ready. I followed him through the long aisle of corn, clinging to the tail of his coat. The golden lantern of the moon hung near the zenith, and when we came out in the open we could see into the far fields. I climbed into my basket at the wall, and as Uncle Eben carried me over the brook, stopping on a flat rock midway to take a drink, I could see the sky in the water, and it seemed as if a misstep would have tumbled me into the moon.

"Hear the crickets holler," said Uncle Eben as he followed the bank up into the open pasture.

"What makes 'em holler?" I asked.

"Oh, they're jes' hollerin' their saws an' their little folks. Terrible deal in the country. Every one on 'em had 't g'it up a stepple quick 's he could or he'd be drowned. They hev their troubles an' they talk 'bout 'em too."

"What do they file their saws for?" I inquired.

"Well, ye know," said he, "where they live the timber's thick an' they hev hard work clearin' 't nuck a home."

I was getting too sleepy for further talk. He made his way from field to field, stopping sometimes to look out at the distant mountains and then at the sky or to watch the dry stalks of timothy with his cane. I remember he let down some bars after a long walk and stepped into a smooth roadway. He stood resting a little while his basket on the top bar, and then the moon that I had been watching went down behind the broad rim of his hat and I fell into utter forgetfulness. My eyes opened on a lovely scene at daylight. Uncle Eben had laid me on a mossy knoll in a lot of timber and through an opening right in front of us I could see a broad level of shining water, and the great green mountain on the farther shore seemed to be up to its belly in the sun.

"Hello there," said Uncle Eben. "There we are at Lake Champlain."

I could hear the fire crackling and smell the odor of steaming tea.

"Yo' dropped round like a fish in that basket," said Uncle Eben. "Guess ye must 'a' been dreamin' o' bears. Jumped so ye scared me. Didn't know but I had a willent on my shoulders."

Uncle Eben had taken a fish line out of his pocket and was tying it to a rule pole that he had cut and trimmed with his jackknife.

"I've found some crawfish here," he said, "an' I'm goin' to try for a bite on the point o' rocks there."

"Goin' to get some fish, Uncle Eben?" I inquired.

"Wouldn't say I was or wouldn't say I wasn't," he answered. "Jes' go in 't try."

Uncle Eben was always careful not to commit himself on a doubtful point. He had fixed his book and slinker in a moment, and then we went out on a rocky point near by and threw off into the deep water. Suddenly Uncle Eben gave a jerk that brought a prodigious out of him and then let his hook go down again, his hands trembling, his face severe.

"By mighty! Uncle Eben," he muttered to himself, "I thought we had him that time."

He jerked again presently, and then

Make Money In California

If you are industrious and capable you can make money there. The big ranches are breaking up into small farms that need more workers to care for the increased product. The towns and cities are prosperous because the country is prosperous.

There are great valleys of the richest soil in America waiting for you. If you have a little capital you can own one of these small farms yourself, or you can rent one on shares and pay for it out of the product in a few years. We will send you descriptive booklets and folders giving full information about the money-making opportunities for every member of the family.

You want to see what the country is really like; you can go there, work a few months, enjoy the delightful climate, the flowers, fruit and scenery, and earn enough to pay your expenses both ways by taking advantage of the

I could see a tug on the line that made me jump. A big fish came thrashing into the air in a minute. He tried to swing it ashore, but the pole bent, and the fish got a fresh hold of the water and took the end of the pole under. Uncle Eben gave it a lift then that brought it ashore, and a good bit of water with it. I remember how the fish slapped me with its wet tail and sprinkled my face shaking itself between my boots. It was a big bass, and in a little while we had three of them. Uncle Eben dressed them and laid them over the fire on a grilliron of green birch, salting them as they cooked. I remember they went with a fine redfish, and the last of our eggs and bread and butter went with them.

Our breakfast over, Uncle Eben made me promise to stay with Fred and the man who could row us across. In about an hour I heard a boat coming, and the dog and I went out on the point of rocks, where we saw Uncle Eben and another man heading for us, half over the cove. The bow bumped the rocks beneath us in a minute. Then the stranger dropped his oars and stood staring at me and the dog.

"Say, mister," said he presently, "can't go no further. There's a reward offered for you an' the boy."

Uncle Eben called him aside and was talking to him a long time.

I never knew what was said, but they came at last and took us into the boat, and the stranger was very friendly.

When we had come near the landing on the "York state," side, I remember he gave us our bearings.

"Keep 't the woods," he said, "till you're out o' harn's way. Don't go near the stage road for awhile. Ye'll find a store a little way up the mountain. Git yer provisions there, an' about eighty rods further ye'll strike the trail. It'll take ye over the mountain north an' 't Paradise road. Then take the white church on yer right shoulder an' 't straight west."

I would not have remembered it so well but for the fact that Uncle Eben wrote it all down in his account book, and that has helped me over many a slippery place in my memory of those events. At the store we got some crackers and cheese, tea and coffee, dried beef and herrings, a bit of honey and a loaf of bread that was sliced and buttered before it was done up. We were off in the woods by 1 o'clock, according to Uncle Eben's diary, and I remember the trail led us into thick brush, where I had to get out and walk a long way. It was smooth underfoot, however, and at noon we came to a slash in the timber full of ladders that were all aglow with big blackberries. We dined our hearts with them, and Uncle Eben found a spring, beside which we built a fire and had a memorable meal that made me glad of my hunger.

Then we spread the oldcloth and lay down for another sleep. We could see the glow of the setting sun through the tree tops when we woke and began our packing.

"Well, he's 't hurry," said Uncle Eben, "we'll never git out o' the woods 't night. 'S 'bout six mile or more 't Paradise road, es I reckon it. Come, yer shewer's a tad in a tar barrel."

We hurried off on the trail, and I remember Fred looked very crestfallen with two big packages tied to his collar. He delayed a bit by trying to shake them off, but Uncle Eben gave him a sharp word or two and then he walked along very thoughtfully. Uncle Eben was a little out of patience that evening, and I thought he bore down too harshly in his rebuke of the old dog.

"You shifless cuss," he said to him, "ye'd jes' dew nothin' but chase squirrels an' let me break my back 't carry yer dinner."

covered ourselves with the shawl, Uncle Eben lay on one side of me and Fred on the other, so I felt secure indeed. The night had many values there in the deep wood. Away in the distance I could hear a strange, wild cry, and I asked what it was, and Uncle Eben whispered back, "A lion." Down the side of the mountain a shrill bark rang in the timber, and that was a fox, according to my patient oracle. When we heard the crash and thunder of a falling tree and a murmur that followed in the wake of the last echo. "Big tree fallin'," said Uncle Eben as he lay gasping. "It has 't break a way 't the ground, an' it must hurt. Did ye notice how the woods tremble? If we was up above them we could see the late that tree fell made. Jes' like an open grave till the others hev fished it with their tops."

My ears had gone deaf with drowsiness when a quick stir in the body of Uncle Eben brought me back to my senses. He was up on his elbow his teeth, and the freight had sunk to a glimmer. Fred lay shivering and growling beside me. I could hear no other sound.

"Be still," said Uncle Eben as he looked at the dog's ears. Then he rose and began to stir the fire and lay on more wood. As the flame leaped and threw its light into the tree tops a shrill cry like the scream of a frightened woman, only louder and more terrible to hear, brought me to my feet crying. I knew the source of it was near us and ran to Uncle Eben in a fearful panic.

"Hush, boy," said he as he died away and went relaying in the far forest. "I'll take care o' you. Don't be scared. He's more 'fraid o' us than we are o' him. He's nakin' off now."

We heard then a great crackling of dead brush on the mountain above us. It grew fainter as we listened. In a little while the woods were silent.

"It's the old man o' the woods," said Uncle Eben. "Es out fakin' a walk."

"No! Is he hurt folks?" I inquired.

"Yes," he answered. "Jes' as harmless as a kitten."
